

Question about a VM or sandbox

Posted by daveboyce - 2016/01/06 16:38

---

So what im wondering is how i can run EveTrader on my PC but also still use the PC, as when its active the computer cannot be used. Can i run the program in a "window" on a second screen and then use my computer for other things. The mouse gets taken over when any part of evepilot is being used. what is a safe way to do this? I dont want to have 2 accounts on one PC or anything. Just free up my PC for use during the day while my EVETrader Runs. Thanks.

=====

Re: Question about a VM or sandbox

Posted by Slav2 - 2016/01/07 04:36

---

There is a article in the manual how to create VM.

=====

Re: Question about a VM or sandbox

Posted by daveboyce - 2016/01/07 13:06

---

so this is a safe way to run the bot? i remember talking to you about vmware being suspicious and its not best to run a bunch of accts on one pc. i want the safest experience possible, so is VMware just as safe as running the game via normally.

=====

Re: Question about a VM or sandbox

Posted by Slav2 - 2016/01/07 15:07

---

Atm CCP does not flag accounts running under VM.

=====

Re: Question about a VM or sandbox

Posted by daveboyce - 2016/01/08 21:05

---

Okay. thanks for the replies. Since i am not running multiple accounts on the same PC/VMs just using it to free up my computer i dont need socks5 proxys correct?

=====

Re: Question about a VM or sandbox

Posted by Slav2 - 2016/01/08 21:22

---

Yes, IP masking is not required if you dont need to separate accounts in eve.

=====